

James & Weaver looks ahead with new owner at old site

YOUNGSTOWN — James & Weaver, one of the area's oldest office furnishings dealerships, has new ownership.

Denise Powell brings 15 years of experience in the office furnishings, design and construction fields. Powell, who has relocated from the West Coast to the Youngstown area, said the company will keep its presence in downtown Youngstown and will renovate its showroom.

She said James & Weaver will continue its 77-year commitment to the community by providing professional interior design and furnishings services. Customers include Delphi Packard Electric Systems, General Motors, Whispering Pines Assisted Living, Dutch Village Inn and many government offices.

Success stories: The company has completed successful projects in fields such as corporate offices,

Powell said the company's relationship with Steelcase, one of the nation's largest suppliers of office furniture, adds a significant dimension to its services.

The company's project team includes space planning, design, construction management, procurement, service, installation and warehousing.
